This product from stealth forex systems, which includes all written material contained within this document, the custom indicators named Stealth LCD and Stealth BUY/SELL and the alert system called Stealth Earlybird together with all of the various set up combinations, and pdf documents (but excluding the metatrader4 trading platform) hereinafter called "the system" and/or "the alert" and/or "the alert system" is and are copyright and or trademark protected. You the purchaser of the system are granted sole personal use of the system. You, the purchaser, may not copy, hire or sell or in any other way promulgate or convey any part or parts of the system without prior written and documented consent of the owners of the system.

Introduction

When we designed and built the Stealth Forex Trading System it was specifically for us to trade, and since we are full time traders we did not even consider building in automatic alerts.

In hindsight, it would have been useful to have made provision for an alert system but we didn't, and so I have had to tell many traders over the years that this is very much a system for the "hands on" trader.

Now to be honest, I still believe that the best and most profitable way to trade is to be diligent and dedicated to the task, and if this involves spending a good many hours studying the charts and watching and waiting for high probability set ups – then so be it.

Having said this, it has become apparent that many of our customers do really want an alert system, despite my insistence that great traders laugh at such an idea.

During the development and testing of this alert system, I have come to appreciate that the Stealth Earlybird really does have a value. It saves me a great deal of time and is always “on the ball”. Sure, I do not always agree with it – and you shouldn't either, but it does immediately bring my attention to some great trading possibilities that I might otherwise have missed, and it does aid me considerably in monitoring multiple currency pairs.

An alert system is not the “be all and end all” of trading, but I hope that you will find it as useful as I have.

Martin Bottomley.

Installation

The Stealth Earlybird V10 must first be uploaded into the custom indicator files of your MT4 platform.

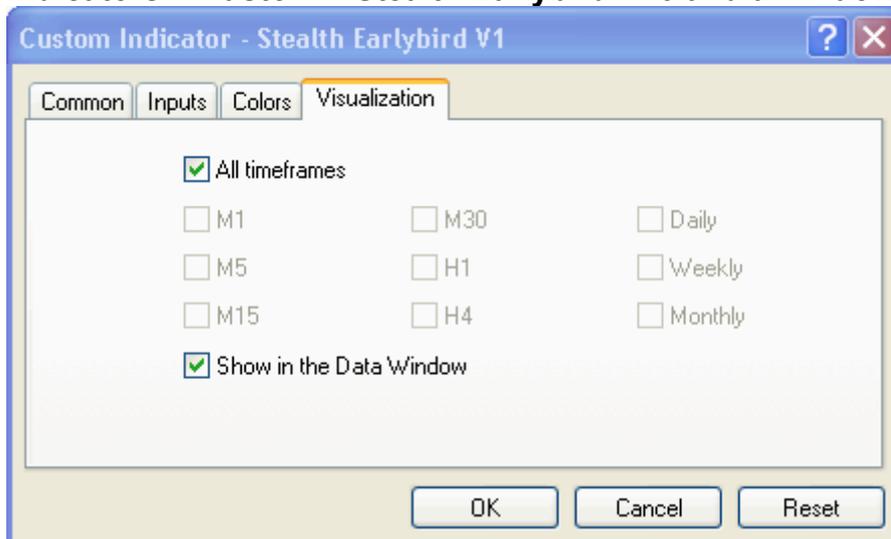

To do this, simply follow the same instructions as for the installing of the Stealth LCD indicator or the Stealth BUY/SELL indicator (see pdf. SET UP V10).

Pre Operation

It is most important to fully appreciate that this alert system has been designed as an early warning aid to bring to the attention of the trader that a trade opportunity may be setting up. There is no guarantee that a trade will subsequently present itself and it is the traders responsibility to ensure that the original rules of the stealth trading system are adhered to, regardless of any or all indications presented by the Stealth Earlybird alert system.

Setting the Alert

With the chart to which you wish to apply the alert open, click :Insert > Indicators > Custom > Stealth Earlybird V10 and a window will open

Click on the Visualization tab and de-select “All Timeframes” (unless you want to be warned of a possible set up on every time frame).

Now select each timeframe for which you require an alert.

I recommend that you select the following:

Longer Term Trades Select only H1 or H4 or 1 Day

Creamer System Select only M30

Scalping System & 15 Minute trader Select only M15

Make sure that the box Show in the Data Window is checked

And now click OK.

The alert system will now be set for the selected chart.

You may select as many charts as you wish by adding another chart and with the new chart open follow the same procedure again.

What happens next?

When the Stealth Earlybird detects the potential for a trade set up you will get an audible alert and a pop up window informing you of which currency pair is likely to be setting up for a trade and in which time frame (depending upon how many charts you have applied the alert to and how many time frames).
